1. The methane content in landfill gas was measured daily, however the ACM0001 ver1 requires that when periodical measurement is chosen, it should be done at 95% confidence level and taking a statistically valid number of samples. The DOE conducted statistical analysis on monthly basis and the results were entered into the spreadsheet replacing the higher values each month to adjust to the 95% of confidence level. The DOE closed this issue because a difference of 1.39% on final emission reduction was not considered material error. Further clarification is required how the approach taken by the DOE is in accordance with the ACM0001 version1. 2. The gas analyzer was out for maintenance from 13-15 June 2006, and CH4 content was taken as the average of the previous month. Further clarification is required how this approach is considered conservative.
